The test of our progress is not whether we add to the abundance of those who have much.

It is whether we provide enough to those who have little.

A Message from the Board Chair and President & CEO

Looking ahead, we see the communities we serve growing and changing, just as we are. We have already become stronger and better prepared to advance our mission by increasing resources and staff in recent years. This has enabled the Foundation to distribute a record number of grants to nonprofit organizations.

To accommodate this growth, the Foundation has moved to larger headquarters in the Kittrell Center at Middleburg Plaza. Our new logo serves as a visual representation of our progress and the changes we envision for the future.

While we celebrate progress, we continue to honor the generous donors who have built the framework allowing us to support proven charitable causes and respond to community leadership opportunities. We intend to build upon the wisdom of these visionaries and invite you to share your ideas in shaping innovative strategies that will define the future of your foundation.

The new challenges we face in the Midlands will require leadership, resources and improved organizational and technological responses to meet the needs of individuals and families. In response to our shared concern for all citizens, trustees and staff have initiated a strategic planning process that will move the Foundation forward in addressing these needs.

A community is like a ship;
everyone ought to be prepared to take the helm.

Henrik Ibsen

These dedicated trustees accepted the responsibility to navigate the course of your Foundation's future.

Carolina Wildlife Care

At the Community Foundation, we strive to connect donors with worthwhile causes throughout our community.

In December 2005, we created Your Gift, Your Connection as a formal channel to share this information with donors in hopes of expanding the impact of our discretionary grantmaking dollars. Our results so far have been more than we could have hoped.

Carolina Wildlife Care (CWC) applied for a Community Impact grant during our August 2006 cycle. They were seeking to integrate the use of live wild animals with a hands-on educational exhibit that travels to schools in the Midlands. The Distribution Committee felt it was an important project, but the Foundation received far more worthwhile requests than it could fund with our discretionary grantmaking dollars.

During a visit with Mrs. Christy Taucher, Foundation staff shared a copy of Carolina Wildlife Care's proposal. Because one of her giving interests is animal welfare, they felt she might be interested in supporting this community need because one of her giving interests is animal welfare.

Mrs. Taucher responded immediately by funding a $6,000 grant for CWC. "I wanted to help Carolina Wildlife Care in any way possible, so I made my gift unrestricted so they could decide how the money would best serve them," said Mrs. Taucher.

Thanks to Mrs. Taucher's generous gift, area elementary school students are able to explore and personally experience the natural world up close. Students are learning the importance of conserving South Carolina's wildlife and protecting its natural resources. When we highlighted Mrs. Taucher's gift in the December 2006 Your Gift, Your Connection newsletter, another donor read the story and was inspired.

"Carolina Wildlife Care is a wonderful organization dedicated to the conservation of urban wildlife habitat and rehabilitation of small wild animals," said Mr. Stewart Mungo. Mr. and Mrs. Mungo issued a challenge to the Community Foundation's donors. They agreed to match any new donation directed to Carolina Wildlife Care through the Community Foundation during 2007, up to $10,000.

The Community Foundation was thrilled that donors were inspired by each other's generosity and were taking action. We announced the Mungo's challenge in our newsletter in March. Once again, our donors responded.

Nick and Sylvia Johnson read the story and decided to make a $10,000 grant to Carolina Wildlife Care. "We are animal lovers," said Mrs. Johnson, "but so often people focus only on domestic animals. Our community is fortunate to have such a great organization that rescues and cares for wildlife animals."

Because of the generosity of these donors, Carolina Wildlife Care received $26,000 in grants. "It is truly amazing how one act of kindness can inspire others to take action," said Joanna Weitzel, Executive Director for Carolina Wildlife Care.

"All three gifts have had an immediate impact on Carolina Wildlife Care. And not only does our organization benefit from the generosity of these donors, but others within the community and the wildlife that inhabits it benefit as well. Their gifts enable a small organization like ours to develop programs that may not have been possible otherwise. We can breathe a little easier about where we are today, but also better plan for tomorrow."

The Foundation thanks Mrs. Taucher, Mr. and Mrs. Mungo, and Mr. and Mrs. Johnson for reaching out to this local nonprofit organization. The Community Foundation is honored to have helped bring together the charitable interests of our donors with a need in our community.

Creating an Endowment

Plan for your future. This is a phrase we often utter to young and old alike. Most people are aware they should plan for their future and that of their families. But what about the future of our communities? Who helps us prepare for that? It requires people with compassion and forethought to plan ahead for the betterment of their community long after they are gone.

People like Mrs. Mary Averill Stanton.

Mary Stanton was born in Aiken and moved to Columbia when she was 20. She helped run the family business, Averill Shoe Store, along with her first husband, Henry Averill. Mary was a savvy businesswoman. Her interest in the stock market began when her parents began giving her stock as a young child. Mary and her brother Barlow Henderson would often discuss the market on his visits from Nashville. She read the newspaper and watched the news to keep a close eye on what was happening on Wall Street.

Her financial advisor and friend, John Stover, spoke of Mary's keen insight about the market. "She had an uncanny ability to identify both industries and particular companies that would be up-and-coming," Stover said. In the mid '80s Mary told John to purchase stock in the largest producer of products to prevent the spread of HIV/AIDS.

Mary told John she believed that this company would be very important in the future because the AIDS virus was unfortunately going to make a huge impact on our world.

Despite her financial means, Mary didn't lead an extravagant lifestyle. She lived conservatively, owning an old Buick that suited her needs just fine. She did, however, lead a very rich life. According to John, she was an interesting woman who loved to entertain her many friends. She was very involved with Trinity Episcopal Cathedral and an early founder of the Trinity Bazaar.

John recalls that Mary never sold a stock. The only time she would let one go was when companies merged, and she received the money from her stock. She referred to this as having her stock 'gobbled up'.

When Mary began making provisions for her estate, she sought assistance from John. Mary wanted a portion of her estate to be endowed, to make sure it would keep giving long after she was gone. It was very important to her to feel confident in whom-ever she chose to assist her with her philanthropic goals.

Mary wanted assurance that her gift would be managed with the same diligence in which she gave it and that her requests would be respected. John told her about the Community Foundation and the services we offer. Mary decided to bequest a portion of her estate to the Foundation.

The proceeds from Mary's estate created three funds at the Community Foundation. Two are designated to assist specific nonprofits in the community. The third endowment will assist with the Community Foundation's competitive grantmaking. Mary's generosity will live on through the legacy she has created through her giving.

Our community is fortunate to have individuals like Mrs. Stanton who plan ahead and provide for our future. Please let the Foundation know if you would like to help plan for our community's future.

Paying Forward

It is a special person who provides for the future of his or her community. Our Legacy Society is a unique group of individuals who have not only chosen to give to the Community Foundation, but have done so in a way that requires a great deal of forethought and compassion. Central Carolina Community Foundation is fortunate that many caring residents have made provisions for planned gifts to the Foundation.

The Legacy Society provides a way for the Community Foundation to recognize and thank these individuals during their lifetimes and beyond. By leaving a planned gift or bequest, the members of this society create a lasting legacy that will live forever. We appreciate their vision and insight for our community's future.

The Free Medical Clinic

2006 Catalyst Award Winner

Staff Nurse Karen L. Sanders, RN takes a patient's blood pressure at The Free Medical Clinic.

The David W. Robinson Catalyst Award recognizes outstanding organizations in the Community Foundation's 11-county service area that have exemplified leadership, creativity, vision and commitment in addressing critical community issues. The award, in memory of the late David W. Robinson, was established by the Robinson family and the Foundation in 1994.

Mr. Robinson was a leader, activist, humanitarian and philanthropist in the Midlands for seven decades. He was a founding member of Central Carolina Community Foundation and served on numerous nonprofit boards including the Columbia Museum of Art, United Way of the Midlands and YMCA.

The Foundation presented The Free Medical Clinic with the 2006 David W. Robinson Catalyst Award at the Foundation's annual celebration. The Clinic received a $2,700 stipend to support its mission to provide quality healthcare, at no cost, to residents of the community who are without health insurance and do not have the means to pay for services.

“To be selected for the award by Central Carolina Community Foundation, an impartial, unbiased and well-respected community leader, immediately gives us credibility as a valued community resource,” said Dennis Coker, Executive Director of The Free Medical Clinic. “We are so thankful for the recognition and will continue to strive on a daily basis to achieve the ideals that Mr. Robinson personified—leadership, creativity, vision and commitment.”

The Catalyst Committee selected The Free Medical Clinic because of its ability to adapt to unmet community needs by making several operational changes. These changes included implementing a Walk-In Clinic from Monday through Thursday, hiring a part-time Pharmacist to dispense medications, tripling the number of hours that patients may pick up their medications and adding patient education classes for individuals with major chronic illnesses.

Incorporated in 1984, The Free Medical Clinic works tirelessly with one part-time physician and 83 volunteer physicians and nurse practitioners to provide primary care services to patients. Nursing volunteers provide patient education and coordinate referrals while volunteer pharmacists and pharmacy technicians provide pharmacy support.

For more information about The Free Medical Clinic, visit www.freemedclinic.org.

“The Free Medical Clinic serves as a testament to the dedication and persistence of the Midlands’ medical professionals to provide and expand access to healthcare in our community.”

Ways to Give

Each individual, family or organization has unique charitable interests and financial circumstances. A gift to Central Carolina Community Foundation will help you make the most of both, so you receive the greatest return on your community investment. We offer a variety of giving tools to help you achieve your charitable goals.

There are two ways to give to the Community Foundation—immediate or planned gifts—and there are several methods by which to contribute these gifts. Each of these choices offers various financial and tax benefits. Immediate gifts include cash, stocks, bonds, real estate or other assets you give to the Community Foundation. Planned gifts include naming the Community Foundation as the beneficiary of a retirement plan, insurance policy or trust.

You can also make a bequest by designating a gift or portion of your estate to the Community Foundation. No matter which vehicle you choose, your gift qualifies for maximum charitable benefit under state and federal law.

When making a gift to the Community Foundation, you receive tax benefits in the year the gift is made. The Foundation handles the administrative details. Your gift is placed into an endowment that is invested over time, with earnings used to make grants addressing community needs. Your gift and all future earnings from the gift is a permanent source of community capital, helping do good work forever.

The Community Foundation is a creative, cost-effective and tax-efficient way for generous citizens of central South Carolina to invest in the charitable causes they care about most.

The permanent charitable funds we help create have long-term impact, thus ensuring people of vision will have an enduring influence on the life of their community and on the charitable causes they hold dear.

Types of Funds

The 11 counties served by Central Carolina Community Foundation represent different needs and interests. The Community Foundation consists of over 350 different funds that are pooled and invested for maximum growth and impact.

Based on the type of fund you establish, you and/or your advisors to the fund may be able to stay involved in the good works your gift makes possible. You may recommend an organization or cause for the gift to support, or rely on the Community Foundation's experienced program staff to determine and address the areas of greatest need in our community.

Commonwealth Funds are supported through your unrestricted gifts and allow the Community Foundation to respond to the ever-changing needs of the Midlands. Income is distributed after a competitive review process to nonprofits that have innovative programs and initiate effective change and progress within the community.

Field-of-Interest Funds support a specific focus area of your choice such as arts, education, human services or youth development. By identifying and distributing grants concurrent with your area of concern, a field-of-interest fund ensures your interests are supported, but does not limit the funding to one specific organization.

Agency Endowment Funds provide a simple way for your nonprofit organization to establish a permanent endowment, providing a source of lasting support. You can choose to receive the annual distribution from your fund or allow it to remain in the fund for continued growth.

Designated Funds allow you to identify specific nonprofit organizations to receive an annual distribution. You may choose one or several organizations to support with your fund. Income from the fund is paid to the designated organization(s) to be used to support operations and programs.

Donor Advised Funds let you stay involved with the causes you hold dear by making recommendations of distributions to eligible charities. These funds provide the flexibility to support many varying organizations and programs. You may choose for your fund to be permanently endowed to address long-term needs of the community or non-endowed to support short-term issues.

Scholarship Funds allow you to help provide educational opportunities for future community leaders. These funds are typically set up to honor loved ones or someone who has helped you become successful in life. You may designate the criteria for the scholarship and assist in the selection process by serving on the scholarship selection committee if you so choose.

Regional Endowments

As part of their relationship with the Foundation, leaders in Chapin, Kershaw, Sumter, Orangeburg and Calhoun have established endowments specific to their areas to better serve local community needs.

Each affiliate has set a clear purpose to enable neighbors, leaders, citizens, family and friends to provide for each other and their futures together as a community. A board of local community advisors provides leadership over the resources for the nonprofit organizations in their targeted areas.

The painting above, by Columbia artist Laurie McIntosh, hangs in the front office of the Community Foundation, and represents the 11 counties we serve.

Supporting Organizations

A supporting organization is an alternative to a private foundation and is classified as a 501(c)(3). Local Midlands organizations and individuals have established endowments to focus support on specific areas of interest, including the Columbia Jewish Foundation and the New Morning Foundation. Both of these supporting organizations operate with their own Boards of Directors and grantmaking criteria.

Columbia Jewish Foundation serves the 3,000 plus members of the local Jewish community by supporting charitable purposes and providing estate planning services that promote and preserve its powerful presence in the Midlands community. Columbia Jewish Foundation funds are currently directed to the Columbia Jewish Federation.

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Who can apply for a grant from the Foundation?

A: The Foundation awards grants primarily to nonprofit organizations that are defined as tax-exempt under section 501 (c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. Organizations must serve one or more of the following counties in South Carolina: Calhoun, Clarendon, Fairfield, Kershaw, Lee, Lexington, Newberry, Orangeburg, Richland, Saluda and Sumter.

Q: What types of grants are available?

A: The Community Foundation offers many different types of grants to build and sustain the Midlands community, including our most prevalent Community Impact (CI) and Organizational Impact (OI) grants. CI grants fund programmatic services, while OI grants address local nonprofit needs by increasing organizational capacity.

Q: How do I apply for an Impact grant?

A: The grantmaking process for CI and OI grants is a two-phase, bi-annual process. Phase One requires a two-page letter of intent, and deadlines are February 15 and August 15 of each year. Organizations are notified within 30 days if they are invited to submit a full proposal for Phase Two. Deadlines for Phase Two are April 15 and October 15.

Q: What does the Foundation look for in an Impact grant?

A: Impact grants are evaluated on the following criteria:

- Measurable impact on quality of life
- Catalyst for community improvement
- Collaboration among organizations
- Non-duplication of services
- Demonstrated financial need

Q: How much do you reward for an Impact Grant?

A: Grants up to $10,000 are available.

Q: Are there any other types of grants available?

A: The Foundation also offers Nonprofit Management grants, which are mini-grants used to attend conferences, host trainings or meet other management needs.

In addition, the Foundation oversees several other grant processes including those for Academy of Columbia Foundation, Hootie and the Blowfish Foundation, Kershaw County Endowment, Knight Foundation Fund, Orangeburg Calhoun Community Foundation, Sumter Community Foundation, and Women in Philanthropy.

Q: How do I get more information about this grants?

A: Detailed grant application guidelines and forms for each type of competitive grant are available online in the Nonprofit Resources section at www.yourfoundation.org.

Making an Impact

In fiscal year 2007, Central Carolina Community Foundation's Board of Trustees approved 25 grants for nonprofit organizations, from commonwealth and field-of-interest funds.

Community Impact grants fund programs that serve the community through programmatic services.

Columbia Oral Health Clinic received a grant that allowed the clinic to hold workshops to educate Midlands Hispanic residents about the immediate and long-term impact of poor oral health on overall physical and economic health.

Community Medical Clinic of Kershaw County was awarded funding to provide for the implementation of a Support Team to address the needs for chronic disease management and assist patients with daily activities such as meal planning, grocery shopping and transportation.

Harvest Hope Food Bank received a grant that provided food pantry credits to six carefully selected food pantries in Calhoun, Kershaw, Lee, Orangeburg, and Saluda counties that were struggling to meet the increase in demand for food assistance in their service areas.

Healing Species received funding which allowed the organization to expand its violence intervention and character education outreach services to an additional 300 to 400 adolescents at the Department of Juvenile Justice, William J. McCord Adolescent Treatment Facility, Orangeburg County Solicitor's Office and Child Evangelism Fellowship.

Lee County First Steps was awarded a grant that allowed sixty children to participate in Countdown to Kindergarten, a summer home visitation program to prepare incoming children for Kindergarten.

Midlands Fatherhood Coalition received funding which allowed the Coalition to provide curriculum that guides fathers to improve their educational status; learn life, job and parenting skills; obtain and maintain jobs that provide a living wage; and address physical and mental health challenges.

Sumter Career Readiness System was awarded a grant to enhance its Painting/Carpentry classes and make them available for the first time to adult education students in the evenings.

The Nurturing Center received funding to add an additional bus route, which decreased the transit times for children and adults and provided services for an additional fifteen families.

Organizational Impact grants address local nonprofit needs by increasing organizational capacity.

Clarendon County Habitat for Humanity was awarded a grant to hire a part-time executive director, its first-ever paid staff position.

Columbia Film Society received funding to hire a consultant to lead the board and staff through a strategic planning process addressing the capital campaign to relocate the Nickelodeon Theatre to the former Fox Theatre on Main Street.

Girl Scouts of South Carolina - Mountains to Midlands, Inc. received a grant to enhance online training, develop performance evaluation tools and processes, and conduct focus groups to improve success and retention of leadership volunteers.

Lee County Council on Aging, Inc. received funding to hire a consultant to lead the board through a strategic planning retreat and develop a Web site.

Newberry County Literacy Council was awarded a grant which allowed the Council to host community forums regarding the literacy needs in Newberry and create a strategic plan based on the input and knowledge gained from the community forums.

Richland County School District One received a grant which allowed the District to implement a joint marketing initiative to promote Someone to Count On, a program to increase lunch buddies and mentors for at-risk children.

Ronald McDonald House Charities of Columbia received funding which allowed the organization to purchase, implement and receive training for fundraising and event management software.

Nonprofit Management grants are mini-grants used to attend conferences, host trainings or meet other management needs.

The Brookland Foundation received funding that provided on-site consulting and technical assistance in developing a strategic plan for the organization.

Communities In Schools of Saluda County was awarded a grant which allowed a staff member to attend SCANPO's Guiding Principles and Best Practices, a seven course training series for nonprofit organizations.

D.R.A.M.A., Inc. received a grant which allowed two staff members to attend the 6th National Conference of the National Center for Black Philanthropy, Inc.

Junior Achievement of Central South Carolina was awarded a grant which allowed three staff members to attend the 2007 JA Worldwide Leadership Conference.

Lee County First Steps received funding which provided a consultant and training manuals for the Early Care and Education Rural Leadership Development Conference.

Lynchburg Community Development Corporation received a grant which allowed three staff members to attend the Housing and Community Economic Development Summit.

South Carolina Association of Nonprofit Organizations received a grant that allowed a staff member to attend the National Council of Nonprofit Associations Conference.

South Carolina Council on Economic Education received funding which allowed a staff member to participate in Raiser's Edge 7: Essentials for Executives training.

South Carolina SHARE was awarded a grant which allowed the board chair to attend the first-ever National Peer Specialist Conference.

South Carolina United Action received funding that allowed a staff member to attend the Tech Camp Training three-day seminar.

In Memory

Margaret F. Lipscomb
1920-2007

Mrs. Lipscomb possessed a commitment to helping others, which she shared with her husband Guy Lipscomb and their four daughters. Margaret and her family have created a legacy of philanthropy that serves as an example to the Community Foundation and all who believe in serving others as a way of life.

Frances C. Shearouse
1916-2007

Mrs. Shearouse made serving others a lifelong dedication. She and her late husband Marshall A. Shearouse helped many individuals and families in need through their long-time support of the Community Foundation. Frances truly made our community a better place to live.

2007 Wine Festival

The International Festival of Wines and Food began in 1995 as a fundraiser to support the Community Foundation. In 2006, the Festival moved its annual events to President's Day Weekend.

Since its inception, the Festival has grown to average 700 participants at the gala event each year. In thirteen years the International Festival of Wines and Food has raised over $580,000 to support Central Carolina Community Foundation and its community outreach. We thank everyone who has made that possible, particularly our volunteers and sponsors.
